"TOO MUCH MOTHER IN LAW"
Two Reel Century Comedy with
Beth Darlington

The newlyweds are happy- even if they do drop a stack of dishes every once in a while. Word comes that the bride's mother will pay them a visit that same day. They go to the station in their motorcycle which has a side car attached.

A flock of bags and porters are tossed out of the train. Then comes wife's mother, a great big bologni who tells her son in law that she doesn't like his name or his face. She piles her bags in the sidecar and sits on the top. Wifie sits behind her husband.

Hubby drives alongside a truck. A dog sticks its face out and licks mommer-in-law. Then she raises a hullabalu. When they arrive at his home, she has the peer lad carry all her grips at one time. It nearly breaks his back. An osteopathic treatment almost ends his existence.

The parrot calls the newcomer names and she retaliates by making him serve tea when her old lady friends call. Booze in the tea makes them tipsy. Young jazzy friends call and are thrown out on their ears.

Hubby finally scopes up the unwelcome visitor in his motorcycle, runs her ragged, until she agrees to leave town. Then he dumps her off at the station. She starts to protest and he bumps her along to the very steps of the train, giving her the merry haha when the train pulls out.
